

Figurenotes with Ukulele

There are two ways you can use Figurenotes on the ukulele.

1. Tune the A string to a G, and the E string to a C, so that you end up with G C C G. This allows you to barre the chord and it won't matter if it is major or minor. Great for getting beginners to join in straight away with group music making.

Using this method also allows time to get used to the strumming patterns and rhythmic playing, without having to concentrate on tricky fingerings. Great for confidence and coordination, this way of playing uses smaller steps rather than having to do everything in one go.

2. Keep the standard tuning of G C E A and teach the chords using the coloured boxes and a photo of the ukulele chord from the player's perspective. This makes the chords easier to play, learn, recognise, and memorise.
